MINING, BUSINESS AND STOCKS

SCARCITY OF ORE HAULERS.

Bingham Operators Complain They Are Unable to Get Their Ore Moved.

PLENTY OF BUSINESS IN CAMP

For Other Outfits, Which Would Re-Heve the Present Congested Condition-Smaller Mines Affected.

There is room for some more ore hauling outfits in Biogham. If someone with plenty of good teams and wagons should go there, patronage would be forthcoming immediately.

Operators are doing considerable complaining these days; the reason for it is, they are unable to get their ore moved to market as rapidly as they would like. The larger producers are not handicapped, as they have either aerial tram ways in operation or else the Copper Belt railroad is available. But a whole lot of smaller mines are placed at t serious disadvantage.

The ore hauling business of Bingham is in the hands of one corporation, which has more business than it can conveniently attend to. That is the trouble. The Bingham-New Haver management has experienced considerable difficulty in getting its ore out and the same can be said of the Utah-Apex, the New England, Butler-Liberal and numerous other mining concerns, which under other conditions, would be regular contributors to the local markets.

The report has been spread in camp that some teams are to be brought over from Park City; which, if true, will re-lieve the present situation.

SUES FOR MINING STOCK.

F. A. Hoock Seeks to Recover 70,000 Shares from W. J. Schoffeld.

F. A. Hoock filed suit in the district court today against W. J. Scholleld and the Arrow Mining company to compel defendant Schofleld to transfer to him 70.000 shares of stock in said company pursuant to an agreement entered with plaintiff on Oct. 5, 1804. Plaintiff al-leges that defendant agreed to sell the stock to him and that he has paid the consideration agreed upon but that defendant has failed to deliver the stock. He asks that Schofield be compelled to transfer the stock and if he fails to do so it is asked that the company make the transfer upon its books.

ACTIVITY IN BINGHAMS. Lewisshons Said to Have Bought United correspondent of the Engineering and Mining Journal in New York, com-menting on the activity being displayed in Bingham stocks, Utah Consolidated Bingham Consolidated and United States concludes by saying:

"Current report is that the Lewis-sohns have been large buyers for Ameran Smelting interests, and one reports that these interests offered $35 a hare for a controlling interest, which is held by a few people. The private smelters in the Bingham camp have given the smelters people some sharp and unwelcome competition in the matand unwelcome competition in the mat-ter of custom smelting, and the recent buying is believed to foreshadow an al-liance of some kind. The late offering of 28,750 shares of United States Min-ing stock was taken by the large holdors, as there was no profit in the trans-action at the time. Net earnings for September were about $90,000, against September were about $90,000, against $107,000 for August, and only $30,000 in July. October is expected to foot up over $120,000. Work of Unwatering Virginia City Mines To Commence Next Week.

Virginia City, Nev., Oct. 24 .- An announcement that assures a revival of the old days of the Comstock is made when the news is given out that the actual work of draining the middle group of mines on the lode will begin next month, probably one week from next Tuesday, Supt. Leon M. Hall made the announcement in an official report to the Ward Shaft association, composed of the Gould & Curry, Savage, Hale & Norcross, Potosi, Bullion, Ex-chequer, Alpha Consolidated and Julia Consolidated Mining companies, which combined over a year ago to put the Ward shaft in repair and equip it with modern pumping plant capable unwatering the mines down to the 3,000foot level. An interesting feature of Engineer Hall's report is the statement that for the first few hundred feet the water is to be lifted from the by means of compressed air instead of steam, electrical or hydraulic power. MAKING A RECORD.

Dewey Mill in Thunder Mountain Will Produce $22,000 This Month.

If the Dewey mine, in Thunder mountain, maintains its record for the first quarter of October throughout the entire month it will create a big sensa-tion in the mining world, says the Nampa Herald. The mill has been do-ing good work all along, effecting a returns have been quite satisfactory, so the unexpected increase shown by Supt. Haug's report for the first eight days of October is more than gratifying. This report shows that during these eight days the ten stamp mill crushed 309,39 tons of ore. The average battery sample was $21.35, the average tailings sample $2.64 and the percentage of savthe 88. At this rate the mill output for the month, would be $22,000, or $2,200 to the stamp. However, Manager Dewey ardly expects this record to be main ained for the month. Supt. Haug sends a list of 24 assays.

taken during the same period from all parts of the workings. These run from $2.84 to $120.97 and the average is 323 39, which is regarded as a remarkable showing.

AT THE ALBION.

Conditions Show Steady Improvemen At This Alta Mine.

Conditions at the Albion mine at Alta are steadily improving and while the tunnel has not as yet encountered a solid body of ore, the face is gradually going into better mineralized ground. Manager Hatfield receives a report from the mine daily, and is anxiously waiting to hear that the real ore chan-nel has been encountered. The Albion will soon be in shape to make a good account of itself.

MALLOY DIED IN BINGHAM.

Manager of the Bingham - New Haven Mine Succumbed to Heart Failure Today.

HAD A SUCCESSFUL CAREER

He Was Instrumental in Fromoting Several Utah Mining Propositions.

Andrew J. Malloy is dead. Such was the information received early during the day by telephone from the Bingham-New Haven mine at Bingham, of which the deceased was manager. His passing was due to heart failure, with which affliction he had been troubled for several months past. Only a few weeks ago his condition was rendered serious through an attack which came upon him while looking through the mine. He was carried to the surface and recovered, but his friends advised him to seek a lower allitude and take a rest for awhile. This, he finally con-cented to do, but wanted to wait a few weeks until certain improvements made at the mine and preparations for the winter campaign were completed. He expected to leave for the coast in about two weeks.

coast in about two weeks.

Mr. Malloy came in from Bingham on Friday and remained in the city until yesterday morning, when he seemed to be in the best of health, with the exception of a slight cold which auced him some annoyance.
The deceased was popular among his equaintances; genial and open heart-could be counted on as being always ready to open his purse to assist worthy ones in distress.

He was well known in the mining section of the west as well as in the financial circles of the east. He was successful promoter and through his efforts, many thousands of dollars were brought into this state for investment in mining propositions. The sale of the Dixle mine in Washington county, was made to Mr. Malloy to L. E. Stoddart, F. H. Brewster and other eastern dart, F. H. Brewster and other eastern capitalists, who afterwards organized the Utah & Eastern Copper company. The property of which he was manager at the time of his death, with the assistance of D. H. Peery, was another promotion of his; the men who bought the Dixle mine, becoming heavily interested in the property; then the Bingsham-New Haven was organized. During the present year Mr. Malloy was ing the present year Mr. Marloy was induced to accept the management. He promoted other western mining propositions and was at one time connected with the Stratton Independence mine of Cripple Creek.

Bingham Oct. 25,-Andrew J. Malloy, manager of the Bingham-New Haven mine, died this morning at 9 o'clock Supt. Taylor was attracted to Mr. Malloy's sleeping apartment short-ly after 6 o'clock by a pounding on the door. Mr. Taylor knew at once that something was wrong and on enter-ing the room, found Mr. Malloy down on his hands and knees on the floor. He was unable to speak, but beckened to Mr. Taylor so as to make him under stand that he wanted a hot cloth place over the region of the trouble. He was assisted onto his bed and everything possible done for his relief, but he soon became unconscious. The company phy sician was sent for, arriving at o'clock; the patient was beyond all human aid, and expired at the hour stat-

New stocks took part in the advance after 12 o'clock, but the diversion of interest into these did not retard a further rise in some of the earlier favorites, notably Union Pacific and United States Steel. New York Central reached 136½ and People's Gas rose 1½ in short order. United States Steel met a good many thousand shares when it touched 22, but it eventually took all at that price and sold a fraction higher. The preferred reached 83½. Transactions in Union Pacific continued on an enormous scale and the buying of it up to 10½ was attended by higher prices for the other Pacifics, St. Paul, Erie and Reading made momentary spurts upward, but fell back again, the two last named touching their lowest prices.

"But suppose that is not the case concerning nations who are thus spo-ken of? Suppose for example they should happen to have different ideas as to what is decent from what a Republican administration in the United States has? Suppose they should have different views upon the subject of what is orderly and proper, and most of all, how unkindly is that impudence that says that other nations must not only be thus decent and orderly and pay their debts, but they must be prosperous also? (Laughter and cheers)
If they are all these, they need have no fear from the United States, but if they are not all these, what then? refer you to the president for an answer to that question. Then it is quite possible that some of these nations might answer us in that spirit, 'We will do as we please, at least on the question of being prosperous.'

Roberts' speech. He charged the Republican party with failure to keep its promises in relation thereto, and cited a number of treaties, which he said had been officially pigeonholed, as proof of his contentions. As a windup to this or his contentions. As a windar to this part of his subject, he said:

"No one, I say, should be entrusted with the great powers of the executive of this great nation, nor can safely be, but one who has high regard for constitutional limitations. Not long ago the first American humerous paper published a very serious cartoon, I sup-pose you would call it. It is worthy of a better name, if one could thing of it. on the one page stands the present executive standing with the sword of war held aloft and the Constitution under his feet. On the other page stands Al-ton B. Parker, with the Constitution held aloft and the sword under his feet. The question for you to decide, or one of them at least, is which of these men you will entrust with the power of the

THE PANAMA CASE

Mr. Roberts then reviewed at length the Panama question, saying in part:
"There was passed by Congress in June, 1902, what was called the Spooner act, which authorized the president to nego-tlate terms of treaty with the South American republic of Columbia for the passage through her territory of an inter-ocean canal. He was to negotiate a treaty providing for a tract of land not to exceed 10 miles in width from the center line of the canal, for which he was authorized to pay $10,000,000. ing to negotiate a treaty with Colombis after a reasonable length of time, that is, if he failed, he was then to turn his attention to Nicaragua, and if possible make a treaty with that govern-ment for a canal across the isthmus," which the speaker said he did not do. Mr. Roberts then continued in a detailed argument calculated to show that there had been a violation of constitu-tional law and morality on our part in the Panama uprising; that we had "lorded" ourselves over a weaker nation; that our course would have been wholly different had the country we dealt with been as strong as our own.

"I want to put this question to you now: Suppose, instead of dealing with the weak and impotent country of Colombia, we had been treating with the British empire, would the Republican administration have followed the same line of policy as it did with Colombia? (Cheers and cries of 'No.') No. I think not. Well then, if you think not, what must be the opinion of the nations of the great government of the United States? Can it be that we have one policy of conduct when dealing with a weak and impotent nation and another when we deal with nations of equal pow-er with us? Are we to laud it over weak nations and stand in respectful awe of those who are our equals in power? What do you call that individual act where a man of great physical strength is found browbeating and perhaps physically opposing poor weak mulings who stand in respectful awe? What do you name it? (Cry from the hall—'A cowardly bully.') Mr. Roberts—"I thank you for saying that, because it relieves me, perhaps. I think I would have been guilty of speaking against dignitaries, had I used such words, and I disclaim that. my friends. But now, whatever less may be said of the president of the United States this may be said of him, that he is a man who has the courage of his convictions. And it is quite possible that, being strenuous by na-ture he cannot help it. I do not know that he deserves any particular credit for it. It is simply a constitutional con-dition with him, he is strenuous as well as courageous, and it is just possible that in some lofty strenuous moment, when the passion is hard upon him, that he might treat Great Britain or even Germany in the same manner. Then what comes? Give me a word. War! Don't you know what that is, what it would mean, if such conduct had been offered towards any great European nation. Would they act as Colombia acts? (Cries of 'Not muh.') Not much, no. I thank you for that word, too. Now I will say this, that the eyes of all the nations of the earth are upon this affair, and had Colombia declared war against the United States in that issue, what would have been the con-sequences? Were I a Colombian as I an American, I would cover my head with sackcloth and ashes that my country was so impotent that it would not strike one blow in defense of its national honor.

LOCAL CANDIDATES. Mr. Roberts at this point said he wanted to say a word on local condi-tions and candidates as well as national, and proceeded to pronounce long and eloquent eulogies upon Messrs. Moyle and Varian, the Democratic nominees for governor and supreme court justice, respectively. Concerning the first named he said they were school mates together in the state university He had watched his friend's upward course from his boyhood days. He remembered when he was struggling to acquire an education after school hours working with sturdy blows over granite blocks on some of our public buildings and it seemed to him that some of the sturdy qualities of the granite were worked into the constitution of the Democratic nominee. So that when Mr. Moyle tells the people of this state that if he is elected gover-nor he will be the governor of all classes of people, and the interests of all will be safeguarded by him; it should be known in advance that he had the ability and honesty of purpose to cristalize that promise into realiza-

PRAISES JUDGE VARIAN.

Mr. Roberts then said that for the highest judicial tribunal of our state the Democrats had nominated a gentleman of extraordinary ability and probity; a gentleman with whom the speak. er first became acquainted while they were both members of the Constitutional convention. Here Mr. Roberts said:
"I wish to say that the people of this state owe to Mr. Varian the fact that the Constitution of our state prohibits the use of the credit of the state in aid of private enterprises, or to build up private fortunes, or to aid private corporations-you owe more, you good people of Utah-that that restriction is n the Constitution, to Mr. Varian, than to any other individual whomsoever. This man is entitled to your support. His election should be made certain.

SPEAKS OF POWERS.

Mr. Roberts here directed attention to the fact that he had not mentioned the candidate in the order of the nomination, and confessed an ulterior pur-pose in what he called "disarranging them," at the same time adding that he not eulogize the other men upon the Democratic ticket simply for the reason that he did not have the time to do so. The speaker said the ast was Judge Powers, a man of brilliant mind, trained to the point of su perb finish, a man gifted with the pow er of speech, persuasion, and logic, who ing generalities; not alone confined to the ability of incisive speech, that reaches to the heart of a matter, analyzes it and lays it bare to the under standing of the people. He also possessed judgment, discretion and good trate, and was a man who would do Utah credit in the halls of Congress. Continuing Mr. Roberts said:

It is reported that after a silence of six years that I suddenly appear upon the Democratic platform it order to prove that there really, after all, is no Church influence in Ctah, that a me sent out as a sort of an antidote that kind of a thing. First of all, is me ask you, with my strong convictions in respect of the administratio of government, that have grown with me from my days of youth, at least me from my days of youth, at from the time I was a lad until and have grown with my growth strengthened with my strength with my nature, concerning which need not deal at any great length; b taking all these into account, and the taking all these into account, and then remembering that there have been a succession of political fights during these last six years, and then imagine me keeping still! Why, when they wouldn't let me stay in Congress, I came back here and took off my coat, if you remember, and did my best to the control of the control came back here and took on my coat, if you remember, and did my best to send back another Democrat to take the seat they would not let me have. In the campaign of 1900 I was again active, speaking in this city and in quite the seat the seat the companies of surrounding cities. Then number of surrounding cities. Then have some recollection that I was convention here this summer, in which I took part, some thought quite an interesting part; I thought so at the time, and I think so yet. Then as soon as the wires brought us the word, that is, the very fay of the nomination of Judge Alton B. Parker, I was down here in the thickest of our city's crowds, upon the platform, ratifying with you the nomination of the man we are going to elect president of the United States.

"And now as to being an agent of anybody. When I was asked on my return from the east some time ago, if I would assist in this campaign, I said. Yes, towards the close of the campaign I can manage, I think, to deliver a few speeches for you, and you may rely up-on me to do so. I conferred with no man. I asked no man's views. I need man. I asked no man's views. I need not do that, in regard to political issues. I always know just where I am at on those matters. The way is not scattered with mists, the path is not devious; it is always to me flooded with light of Democratic principles, and it is a great highway in which my feet may travel. (Cheers). And so I am here in this camber and I am here in this camber. (Cheers). And so I am here in this cam-paign, and I am here, my friends, to urge you to stand firmly in the princi-ples that we have received from the fathers, and to deal honestly with all men in political matters, and we need not doubt of the outcome.

The Democratic party in this state has ever been steady and firm. We have "Mormon" candidates who were not always acceptable to the Gentile Democrats. It is possible that we have had Gentile candidates that were not altogether satisfactory to all the "Mormon" Democrats, although I can't think of an instance of that kind; but I do know that the other has prevalled, that the that there have been unable. that is, that there have been unsatis-factory "Mormon" candidates and I wish to say that notwithstanding these personal views the Democrats of I'tah have been true to their candidates, Gen. tile Democrats have been true to "Mormon" Democrats, they were true to me distasteful as I was to some of them. And upon the floor of the American Congress, I was able to say to that august body of legislators and it is a statement that has not been challenged that I was elected, not by virtue of any Church influence, but by virtue of the honorable support given to me by Gen-Democrats. Then this party has never been split in twain because of any internal dis-sensions. They have pursued from and as they have stood firm for that principle, not driven about by every wind of doctrine or rumor that has struck them, so I say they will be in the future; and if you would see Utah re-deemed from the petty unworthy strifes that are ever thrust into our polities in this state, I call your attention to the ark of the covenant, politically, and the ark of safety that is to be

J. N. Sharp Attempts to Drive a Horse With Bad Record.

About 8 o'clock tast night a team of horses dashing down First South street without due regard for the legal rights of pedestrians and telegraph poles, attracted a great deal of attention from the crowd on the sidewalk. In the buggy behild them were two men tugging frantically at the reins in an effort to at least keep in the general direction of the read. the ribbons were former Councilman J. N. Sharp, and a companion, who had started westward toward the duck hunting country for a monring's shoot. The team was finally checked in its med run at Mais street after a run of half a dozen blocks. It appeared from the subsequent statement of Mr. Sharp that he had rented a grey horse from an east side livery slable to drive with his own out to the duck hunting grounds, and that when he had started the grey had begun a kloking and rearing exhibition that ended in a dash down the street by the team. The adminishmal has a bad record in Salt Lake, and about two weeks ago got tangled up in the archway in front of Walker's ball. He was not continued in service for the hunting trip after the runaway, but was replaced as soon as he could be unlitted. the ribbons were former Councilman J. N
